

CONDITIONAL ELIGIBILITY FORM

What is the Conditional Eligibility Service?

It is an evaluation of your academic records by San Francisco State University (SF State) to see if you are eligible for admission to the university. SF State will check that you have the minimum grade (GPA) requirement and that you studied/are studying in a regionally accredited institution. SF State Graduate admissions will also check that you hold the equivalent to a US Bachelor's degree. If you have the minimum admission requirements, SF State will issue a letter stating that you are eligible to apply for a future semester. This service/letter is NOT a notice of admission. In order to receive official admission to a degree program, you must formally apply during the appropriate filing period and meet all other requirements.

Note: Students graduating/graduated from a U.S. high school might have different admission requirements.
 For more information visit <https://future.sfsu.edu/admissions/international>

To get this service, send the following items WITH the ALI application form OR after you have applied to the ALI:

1. This form completed, signed and dated.
2. Gap in Attendance Inquiry (Undergraduate applicants only) explaining any long periods between academic studies (i.e. work, language school). The form can be found <http://ali.sfsu.edu/sites/default/files/gap-attendance-form.pdf>
3. Official transcript (and graduation and/or degree certificate if available) from all schools/universities you have attended. Clear copies are acceptable for evaluation purposes.
 If your school does not issue transcripts in English, submit official academic records in the original language of issue, and English translation done by an official translation company. Notary is not accepted. All submitted documents become property of SF State and cannot be photocopied or returned.
